Overview

In the wake of diminishing humanitarian aid, the goal of UNHCR and partners is ensuring that refugees and host communities attain resilience and self-reliance, with a focus on supporting supporting agricultural production, access to formal employment and enterprise development. It is also envisioned that the support of partners and the government's commitment to creating a conducive environment will also contribute into increased incomes and jobs for refugees and host communities.

In the third quarter, partners continued to advocate for increased access to land and provide the necessary training to ascertain the participation of refugees in value chain and enterprise development and graduation initiatives. During this period, partners also provided training to farmer producer groups and supported them to practice produce aggregation for collective marketing.

With the ongoing food prioritization, enhancing investments in livelihoods and economic inclusion interventions, especially in agricultural production, post-harvest handling, as well as enterprise development, is imperative. However, despite a few new initiatives that commenced implementation with a focus on market systems development and the vast opportunity to transform the local economic dynamics in refugee hosting districts, investments by development partners and the private sector towards large-scale agricultural production and value chain development still limited.
