Uganda Refugee Response Plan (RRP) 2024 - 2025

Quarter 2
April - June

Quarter
Q2 2024

Overview of the sector and narrative

The Sector Overview:

The goal of the livelihoods and resilience sector is to ensure refugees and host communities attain self-reliance and resilience and live peacefully with their host communities in a conducive environment for sustainable livelihoods. In line with this, partners are advancing refugee economic inclusion by supporting access to arable land for agricultural production, performing land opening operations using tractors for refugees and host communities and providing training in good agricultural practices. In addition, partners also implemented activities including financial literacy training, business management training, formation of groups/cooperatives and short-term employment-through cash for work, though on a reduced scale compared to quarter one. It is envisioned that the support of partners and the government's commitment to creating a conducive and enabling environment will translate into income and jobs for refugees and host communities. During the second quarter of 2024, partners contributed to the development and of the Self-reliance index measurement tool as part fulfilling the Government of Uganda GRF 2023 commitment. The tool will assist partners to improve the measurement and understanding of key drivers of self-reliance and resilience and to assess the movement towards or away from self-reliance among refugee and host community households.

The Result Analysis:

By the end of Q2, a total of 937 formal land agreements were signed with landlords within the 13 settlements. In addition, 3,291 acres of additional arable land was accessed by refugees with government support to expand agricultural activities. A total of 4,418 households received emergency livelihoods support which included planting seeds (Rice, cassava, Sesame and assorted vegetable seeds), Pulses, fruit trees, poultry, farm tools (hand hoe, watering can, rake, and planting line) and Crop pest/disease control units. In addition, 10,507 households received various forms of livelihood support including skills development, market linkages, productive assets support and coaching. By the end of the quarter, 36,171 individuals were trained in climate smart agriculture, 40,542 individuals were trained in good agronomic practices and 21,103 individuals were trained on leadership/group management skills to ascertain the participation of refugees in value chain development and graduation initiatives. Finally, to increase the number of refugees with decent work and access to employment opportunities, 1,194 graduates were linked to employers.

The Key Challenges/Opportunities:

The effects of climate change continue to affect crop production across all settlements, with West Nile being the worst affected. There has been prolonged drought within the second quarter resulting in poor crop harvests. Despite the efforts to enhance refugee self-reliance, food insecurity remains a challenge as about 68% of refugee households were reported to be food insecure. By the end of 2nd quarter, the sector realized USD 28 million, which is 17% of the USD 162 million, the total required for livelihoods projects in 2024. The expected impact of the reduced funding is that there is a risk of reversal of the gains made in self-reliance.

The Sector Priorities:

The sector is strengthening livelihood beneficiaries' data recording, to improve program design, targeting, and to reduce duplication of efforts through improved beneficiary data coordination. Pre-test of the self-reliance measurement index tool in the 13 settlements and in Kampala, before its launch in September 2024. The sector will continue advocating for multi-year funding, strengthen thematic coordination around key sector priorities of graduation, value chains, market systems development, and skills development, entrepreneurship and employment linkages at both national and settlement level. The sector will continue to mobilize partners to align activities in line with the Jobs & Livelihoods integrated response plan. Sector activities will also be geared towards the GRF 2023 commitments and tracking matching pledges.
