Situation Overview and Humanitarian Needs

The priorities for Syrian refugee children in Turkey remain the same, namely:

- Provision of winter clothes and shoes
- Provision of teaching materials for the teachers of school-aged children in the camps
- Provision of education supplies for school-aged children in Syrian refugee camps
- The development and resilience of Syrian refugee children and youth in Turkey, including children with disabilities, through adolescent volunteerism in play, physical education and sports activities.
- Provision of psycho-social care and effective referral mechanisms through safe recreation and education for children and youth affected by the Syrian crisis.

Programme response

UNICEF will be providing winter clothing to 12,000 children aged 0-18 years in Akcakale camp in Sanliurfa. Procurement of the supplies is underway. On 4-5 December, a joint UN health needs assessment mission took place in southern Turkey, co-organized by WHO in close collaboration with the Ministry of Health (MoH) and AFAD (Prime Ministry Disaster and Emergency Management Presidency). In addition to WHO, UNICEF, UNHCR, UNFPA, and IOM participated. The aim of the mission was to get an overview of the health services, the living conditions, and the overall environment (including winterisation) of Syrians. The assessment report is currently undergoing finalisation.
