Operational Context

As the situation remains unstable in North East Syria, Syrian refugees continue to flee their homes and seek safety across the border in neighbouring Iraq. Refugees continue to cross through two main informal points, Sehela and Al Walid. The two main camps receiving the new arrivals remain Bardarash and Gawilan camps, depending on the availability of space. The number of refugees in both locations is now fluctuating as more Assayesh clearances are coming through and refugees are able to reunite with their families in the urban areas. Coordination mechanisms remain the same with twice weekly interagency coordination meetings ongoing at Bardarash camp and a fortnightly inter-agency coordination meeting in Duhok.

Achievements

PROTECTION

Achievements and Impact

- As of 1 December 2019, 15,308 Syrian refugees have been registered with UNHCR, out of whom 47% are female, 53% are male, and 50% are children. Main areas of origin of those registered are Qamishli (34%) and Ras al Ain (34%), Ain Al Arab (10%), al-Hasakeh (8%) and al-Malika (6%). At-risk and extremely vulnerable individuals are being fast-tracked for registration.
- Reunification of newly arrived refugees with relatives outside the camps continues. 5,755 refugees have so far been cleared to leave. Under a new Assayesh regulation for Bardarash, refugees cleared and wanting to leave the camp for family reunification can do so on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, whereas those returning to Syria can leave on Mondays. On Wednesdays and Fridays, refugees will not be allowed to exit the camp.

INTER-AGENCY OPERATIONAL UPDATE

- 65 protection assessments were conducted in both camps, mostly for pending reactivation
- Identification of unaccompanied and separated children is ongoing along with Best Interest Assessments (BIAs) and Child Protection assessments. During the reporting week, 38 BIAs (15 in Bardarash and 23 in Gawilan) were conducted by protection partners.
- Three child/ adolescent centres have been established at Bardarash camp. These centres aim to provide structured psychosocial support (PSS), recreational activities as well as case management. A structured PSS training is now ongoing benefitting 20 staff from the three child protection centers in Bardarash. The training focuses on child and youth resilience as well as a one-day training on mechanisms for monitoring and reporting.
- 45 persons with specific needs were identified, counselled and referred to relevant service providers.
- Community Outreach Volunteers (COVs) continue to conduct community mobilization activities, as well as information dissemination and sensitization activities in Bardarash and Gawilan camps. Key messages were about anti-fraud, registration process, basic hygiene, fire prevention and other available services. They also assisted families of persons with specific needs.
- A total of 85 new arrivals have voluntarily returned to Syria during the reporting week bringing the total to 419 individuals. Pre-return rapid surveys and protection counselling are conducted for families/individuals who express their wish to return to Syria. Individuals who wish to return are supported by Assayesh and return through Peshkabour crossing point. Overall, the reasons for wanting to return include: desire to reunite with their families (33%); lengthy Assayesh clearance procedures to depart camp, tied to restriction on freedom of movement (34%); Quality of services (including medical treatment) in the camps not meeting expectations of refugees (11%); while 22% related to the relatively safer conditions in Syria reported by family members; lack of livelihood opportunities and others reasons.

Each health actor will have a team of a doctor, nurse, and pharmacist or pharmacist's assistant. In addition, they will support the PHCC with medicines.
