The Ukraine emergency has been described as the oldest humanitarian crisis in the world, with 8.9 million people, or 24 per cent of the population, over 60 years of age. Older refugees face disproportionate barriers in accessing essential humanitarian support due to poverty and limited accessibility to assistance, services, and information. Moldova has been significantly impacted by the ongoing conflict in Ukraine, with, as August 2023, over 894,000 Ukrainian refugees and 109,000 third-country nationals seeking refuge in the country since February 2022.

"I was forced to leave Chernihiv, Ukraine, with my daughter (38) and two grandchildren. Our city was one of the towns that managed to resist. Every day we were bombed, many civilians died. I thought we would not survive. We travelled one week to arrive here in Criuleni, where I feel protected and safe. I am visually impaired since childhood. I have no intention of returning home. My apartment was destroyed by a missile. I have nowhere to go."

OLDER REFUGEES BRIEFING NOTE

The Ukrainian Emergency has been described as the oldest humanitarian crisis in the world, with 8.9 million people, or 24 per cent of the population, over 60 years of age. Older refugees face disproportionate barriers in accessing essential humanitarian support due to poverty and limited accessibility to assistance, services, and information. Moldova has been significantly impacted by the ongoing conflict in Ukraine, with, as August 2023, over 894,000 Ukrainian refugees and 109,000 third-country nationals seeking refuge in the country since February 2022.

As of August 2023, more than 117,000 refugees have decided to remain in Moldova. Based on UNHCR cash enrolment data, it is estimated that over 21% of refugees are more than 60 years old in Moldova and therefore considered older refugees.

Compared with other groups of refugees, older people over 70 are more likely to be alone, face more obstacles to receiving information, and face a greater risk of having insufficient money to buy essential food and non-food items, since they are unlikely to work and have an income beside cash assistance.

The mental health and psychosocial impacts of the war on older people is worrisome. The majority of older refugees said that the war had impacted them emotionally due to separation from their loved ones, loneliness or isolation, disagreements with relatives or friends, and loss of loved ones.
At the end of 2022, HelpAge International conducted an assessment. The results showed that 82% of older people interviewed had at least one health condition, with 51% having more than one. The top six health conditions were: hypertension; joint aches and pains; heart problems; gastro-intestinal problems; diabetes; and respiratory diseases. 32% percent of those interviewed with a health condition reported they could not fully access their medication.

Of particular concern is that 60% of older refugees in the community reported having to adopt negative coping strategies such as using savings (47%), not paying rent (20%) and borrowing money (16%) to subsist in Moldova.

This briefing note aims to provide an overview of the situation of older refugees in Moldova and the gaps and needs they face, as well as the current efforts being made by humanitarian stakeholders to address these challenges.

KEY RESULTS 2022/2023

“A lot has changed, with women and even children taking on many responsibilities. I am now taking care of everyone, the mom and the child.”

GAPS AND NEEDS OF OLDER REFUGEES

The main gaps identified by the Disability & Age Task Force members through different assessment and monitoring exercises are:

- Need to increase the availability of accessible accommodation options, both in private settings and Refugee Accommodation Centers (RACs).
- Lack of medicine and diagnostic services for older people with chronic conditions which can lead to secondary complications and disability if not treated.
- Lack of rehabilitation services such as physical and occupational therapy and qualitative assistive devices to improve the independence and autonomy of older persons.
- Need to collect and analyze Sex, Age and Disability disaggregated data on older persons in the humanitarian response assessments and reporting system.
- Need to create communication channels that are appropriate for older people, i.e.: in-person visits and phone calls to communicate.
- Need for socialization spaces and activities tailored to older men and women with and without disabilities.
- Need to ensure GBV service providers do not exclude older refugees.
- Need to reduce social isolation of older people by engaging with them and providing appropriate community activities.
- Lack of consultation with older people and OPAs (Older People Associations) to ensure participation in decision making processes.
- Need to monitor access of older people to temporary protection, addressing registration difficulties, and ensuring access to basic rights.

“I have enough food, and enough rest, my main problem is absence of community.”

STORIES FROM REFUGEES

Vasly and Nadezhda, his 74-year-old wife, left their hometown Kamianske (Dnipropetrovsk oblast) in the second week of March 2022, after the invasion of their town by Russian soldiers. After the invasion, the couple took refuge for almost three weeks in the house basement. During this time, Nadezhda suffered a heart attack, and she needed rest to recover. As soon as it was possible, they decided to go to Balti, in the Republic of Moldova, where they had previously worked in the 1980s. The trip to reach Balti in March 2022 was difficult and took them two full days.

The couple had to make several stops so his wife could receive the necessary care. Nadezhda, as well as recovering from a heart attack, has diabetes and high blood pressure. Vasilis often feels pain in his legs but has never complained about it. They receive vouchers for food and hygiene kits provided by HelpAge. All of this support partially covers expenses for food and personal hygiene products. With the money saved, they purchase the necessary expensive medicines for Nadezhda which she previously received for free in Ukraine, but now has to buy in Moldova.

The couple look forward to the war ending and plan to return home when it does.
