

December 2024

Over the years, the Republic of Cyprus (RoC) has been receiving an increasing number of refugees, particularly from neighbouring Syria. From 2002 until the end of 2024, some 23,300 persons have been registered as having been granted international protection in Cyprus, of whom approximately 4,600 were granted refugee status, and approximately 18,700 subsidiary protection. With significant numbers of people afforded international protection in the RoC in recent years, the need for greater assistance and support to help them integrate has become more apparent.

In 2023 some 11,617 persons applied for asylum in the RoC. In 2024, some 6,777 persons applied for asylum. Approximately 20,500 persons' applications are pending at the Asylum Service and 6,900 persons' appeals are pending at the International Protection Administrative Court (IPAC), as at end December 2024.

Up until end December 2024, some 24,341 refugees from Ukraine have applied for Temporary Protection in the RoC.

Education and employment opportunities are keys to refugee integration

Belqis and Shamsia benefited from key integration support from UNHCR in Cyprus

Empowerment of refugees through information provision, education, training and employment opportunities enables them to quickly become self-sufficient, integrated and valuable members of their host society. Afghan refugees Belqis and Shamsia met each other at the Kofinou Reception Centre in Cyprus and soon became best friends. While at the Centre, they benefited from vital counseling and integration assistance from UNHCR. Shamsia excels in academics and athletics, while Belqis is skilled in geographical information systems. Having since found work and moved out of the Centre, Belqis and Shamsia are optimistic about a brighter future. They aim to further their education and find employment in their fields of specialization. Integration in Cyprus remains one of the most challenging areas of the national asylum system. The impediments international protection beneficiaries face result from a lack of a comprehensive integration strategy to provide knowledge of the local language; differences in cultures and habits; bolster understanding within the host society of their specific situation and assist in gaining access to employment. Family reunification, long-term residence and naturalization also remain areas of concern.

An integration strategy was developed over the last years under an EU-funded project and included 30 proposals, in eight key areas, including housing, education, employment and vocational training. While it was expected to start implementation in 2022, it was not approved by the former Government. In the absence of an integration plan, smaller scale integration projects under the EU's Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund (AMIF) have been implemented since 2014.

A new National Integration Action Plan for 2024-2026 was drafted and presented for public consultations in March 2024, with UNHCR participating in the process and submitting its comments in writing. UNHCR's proposals to the European Funds Unit, for consideration under the Asylum and Migration Fund, included the following suggestions: Civic Learning and Orientation Programs to be implemented in all districts; programs for interpretation services; programs for smooth transition to independent living for unaccompanied children and other vulnerable groups; child-care services; vocational training and job matching programs to improve employability.

Integration is affected by the limited possibilities for family reunification, which remains inaccessible to beneficiaries of subsidiary protection. This group makes up the overwhelming majority of international protection beneficiaries in Cyprus. For recognized refugees, administrative and procedural obstacles towards achieving family reunification persist.

The prospect of being able to obtain long-term residence pursuant to five years' legal stay has proved difficult for international protection beneficiaries due to the stringent requirements, which are difficult for persons to meet: tax statements of the past five years; a statement of social insurance contributions for the last five years; health insurance coverage and a Greek language proficiency certificate. In 2021 and 2022, no long-term residency was granted to beneficiaries of international protection.

Naturalization of international protection beneficiaries has been made almost impossible, particularly for those with subsidiary protection status, since amendments to the law in December 2023. Even when eligibility requirements were met under the previous law, there was an overall restrictive policy to grant citizenship. In 2021 and 2022, a total of 38 international protection beneficiaries were naturalized as Cypriots: 11 in 2021; 27 in 2022. UNHCR has submitted recommendations and will continue to promote the benefits of naturalization for both refugees and the host community.

UNHCR advocates for Age, Gender and Diversity Inclusion. Fleeing persecution and seeking safety across a border does not always mean the end of discrimination against various groups – including LGBTIQ+ people – in the countries where they seek asylum. As part of our advocacy for the inclusion of LGBTIQ+ refugees, and the protection of their dignity and safety, UNHCR Cyprus met with African LGBTIQ – a refugee-led activist and support group in Cyprus – on the occasion of IDAHOBIT2024.

UNHCR's advocacy work on integration includes:

- Through its physical presence at the Kofinou Reception Centre UNHCR offers integration support and individual counselling to the residents. UNHCR has also established communication with a network of employers eager to hire refugees, leading to employment referrals and jobs for a number of qualified residents. As a result, 60 residents found jobs and/or accommodation, and 195 were registered on the HelpRefugeesWork platform in 2024.
- The Help Refugees Work (HRW) Platform [<https://www.helprefugeeswork.org/>] was set up by the UNHCR Office in Cyprus, in collaboration with its NGO partner, the Cyprus Refugee Council, to boost refugee employability. HRW brings motivated refugee jobseekers in contact with potential employers and training providers in Cyprus.
- On the occasion of the International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (21 March 2024), UNHCR together with members of the academic community announced the decision to establish an anti-racist observatory [<https://bit.ly/3IKKloG>] in Cyprus, following the pledge made by the University of Cyprus at the Global Refugee Forum in December 2023. The anti-racist observatory will actively monitor, document, and address all hate crimes, including racial prejudice and violence in Cyprus.
- In December 2019, UNHCR held its first Integration Conference in Nicosia, under the title The Integration of Refugees in Cyprus – Opportunities and Challenges [<https://bit.ly/2Z7L3jL>] to bring together relevant stakeholders to discuss the main challenges in integration. UNHCR's second Integration Conference tackled the impact of misconceptions on refugees' integration process in Cyprus and the following year, the conference focused on the role of local authorities and of every individual in enhancing social inclusion. In October 2022, UNHCR held a workshop on the financial inclusion of refugees [<https://bit.ly/3lwrkCs>] with key stakeholders from the financial sector, governmental departments, NGOs and refugee entrepreneurs to discuss the challenges experienced by the refugee population in Cyprus and explore opportunities for their financial inclusion.
- UNHCR Cyprus has forged important partnerships with academic institutions to enhance education and self-reliance prospects for refugees, including through refugee scholarship programs. UNHCR Cyprus has signed a Memorandum of Understanding with three Universities, namely the University of Nicosia [<http://bit.ly/2ETD4hu>], the European University of Cyprus [<http://bit.ly/2nCHLpN>] and most recently with the Neapolis University of Pafos [<https://bit.ly/3N89fNe>]. Additionally, the Occupational Therapy Programme of the European University of Cyprus launched a pioneering program for refugees and asylum-seekers in February 2019 aiming at facilitating their integration in the local society. [<https://bit.ly/3L6I7LN>].
- Since 2015, UNHCR has commissioned opinion polls to identify Cypriots' perceptions and attitudes towards refugees, asylum-seekers and migrants. According to the opinion polls in 2015 and 2018, the general feelings of Cypriots towards refugees and migrants were neutral to negative. The findings of the 2022 study [<https://bit.ly/40G9jla>] however showed a diminished public support towards refugee integration compared to the 2018 poll, with most of the respondents believing that refugees and asylum-seekers are not beneficial to the local economy or culture. Notable was also the increased concern about demographic changes, and criminality and violence that the participants believe are caused by refugees and asylum-seekers.
- UNHCR maintains the Help Platform in Cyprus [<https://help.unhcr.org/cyprus/>], which is an important source of information for refugees and asylum-seekers and therefore a useful tool for their integration. The Help Platform includes information in English, Arabic and French about the rights and duties of refugees and asylum-seekers in Cyprus, as well as information about where to seek help and integration support information, including access to education and other programmes.
