General Shelter Needs

Current shelter situation

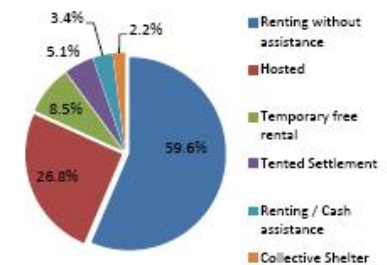

Refugees in Lebanon are scattered across the country with the largest concentrations of refugees living in north Lebanon (42%) and the Bekaa valley (32%). Since registration has begun in south Lebanon, refugee concentrations there, and including Beirut, have increased to approximately 26% of total refugee population.

At the beginning of the influx, most refugees resided with host families, however, this dynamic has shifted as the length of displacement extends and the numbers increase.

Currently, 60% of the registered population rent accommodation, for relatively high rent. This accommodation is often in poor or sub-standard condition. Approximately 27% percent of refugees live with host families. A growing number of refugees, currently 8.5% percent, are accommodated in unfinished private houses which have been upgraded by sealing off interventions or basic rehabilitation. In exchange, the owners have provided free rent accommodation to refugees. A further 5% of Syrian refugees stay in tented settlements and 2% are accommodated in collective shelters.

The availability of shelter in general, and particularly adequate shelter, is a persistent concern. The ability of agencies to quickly address shelter needs is constrained by a number of factors including: the increasing rate of new arrivals and registered populations; the dispersed nature of settlement (across 700 municipalities); the

UNHCR's needs for shelter/NFIs/winterization: $ 30,2 m million (RRP4)
$ 2.2 m Received (does not include funding pledges)	Gap $ 28 m
