

Daily Report

Arrivals and Departures: According to the Greek Refugee Crisis Management Coordination Body, 53,117 people were on Greek territory on Monday; among them 75 new arrivals. 29,429 people are located in northern Greece, 11,194 are at Eidomeni, 14,387 are hosted in the region of Attica, 6,976 on the Greek Islands and 2,325 are hosted in different areas in central Greece.

The Turkish General Directorate of Migration reported that the number of registered Syrian refugees in the country currently stands at 2,749,410 persons. An additional 265,494 non-Syrian asylum-seekers and refugees have registered with UNHCR in Turkey.

Condition of People: On Tuesday morning, 12 April, 3,800 people remain at the two passenger stations and the warehouse of the port of Piraeus. Giorgos Kyritsis, spokesperson for the Refugee Crisis Management Coordination Body, said that the port of Piraeus will be evacuated by May 1. He added that the reception facility in Skaramangas is ready to accommodate 800 people.

On Monday, 11 April, approximately 180 people, mainly of Syrian nationality, embarked on two buses that transported them to the camp in Skaramangas. Additional similar transfers are expected to follow in the coming days. Many people of Yazidi origin also left the Elliniko facility and reached Piraeus port with the intention of being transferred to Skaramangas.

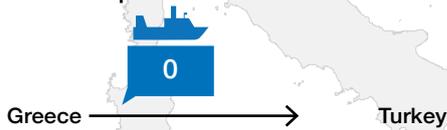

On the islands, on Chios, Dipethe facility will be utilised to accommodate those transferred from the island's port. Additionally, authorities transferred 228 Syrian nationals (all families intending to apply for asylum) who were willing to move from the island of Chios to Leros.

In 2015, according to a study published by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism, at least 95,000 unaccompanied children applied for asylum in Europe last year, four times the numbers for 2014. The largest number of unaccompanied minors were found to be from Afghanistan.

Critical Developments: In Austria, UNHCR issued a press release to express concern regarding the intended amendment of the Asylum Act. The draft law foresees limited access for asylum-seekers to the asylum procedure. The majority of those seeking international protection could, on the basis of this legislation, be rejected at the border in a fast-track procedure and be returned to Austria's neighbouring countries unless having close family ties in Austria. UNHCR called for joint European solutions rather than unilateral measures. Furthermore, access to the territory and fair asylum procedures for all asylum-seekers, the respect for legal minimum standards, and special treatment for children and particularly vulnerable people were urged. UNHCR appeals to the Austrian Federal government to reconsider the proposed amendment and adopt measures in line with international and European refugee law.

The Greek Ministry of Interior announced the launch of a new online information platform regarding the asylum process; the information is available in 18 languages including Arabic, English, Farsi, and Urdu. It can be accessed via asylo.gov.gr.

From 14-20 April, UNHCR will undertake a comprehensive joint protection and technical assessment mission to seven sites located on the Greek mainland in northeastern Athens (Thermophiles, Koutsochero, Doliana, Filipiada, Katsika, Konitsa and Larissa) to identify imminent and longer-term needs of the refugee population.

Speaking to public broadcaster ERT, Brigadier General Zacharoula Tsigioti, head of Greece's immigration police, stated that about 3,500 people are currently located at the detention facility in Moria on the island of Lesbos. Almost all those present have expressed interest in submitting an application to request asylum; applications are now being processed. Of those, about 700 persons with specific needs have been transferred to the municipality's open accommodation centre in Kara Tepe. Tsigioti also said the asylum service on Lesbos has been strengthened with an additional 46 staff and aims to examine 50 applications per day. She added that Syrian nationals who will be returned by plane to Turkey under the EU-Turkey agreement will be processed in Osmaniye Province (near Adana).

The Secretary General of NATO, Jens Stoltenberg, is expected to visit Greece and Turkey on April 20-21. Stoltenberg is due to meet with the Foreign and Defence Ministers of both countries, following the decision to extend NATO's presence in the Aegean by another two months.

Situation Overview

Annex 1 Key Figures from the Portal

Increasing numbers of refugees and migrants take their chances aboard unseaworthy boats and dinghies in a desperate bid to reach Europe. The vast majority of those attempting this dangerous crossing are in need of international protection, fleeing war, violence and persecution in their country of origin. Every year these movements continue to exact a devastating toll on human life.
