

TURKEY

EDUCATION EXTERNAL UPDATE

February 2017

Close to 60%

Of Syrian refugee children enrolled in school

50 % increase

in enrolment in formal education between June 2015- June 2016

Only 2.2 %

Syrian refugee youth enrolled in Higher Education

1,000

New DAFI scholarship places for 2016 and 2017

REFUGEES' RIGHT TO EDUCATION

- An enabling policy and legislative environment guarantees access to education for refugees: The Ministry of National Education (MoNE) is responsible for ensuring that all refugee children enjoy access to schools and has taken steps to remove administrative barriers to enrolment.
- Refugee/asylum-seeker children registered with the authorities can enrol in Turkish schools free of charge.
- MoNE approved the establishment of “temporary education centres” (TECs) to enable Syrian refugee children to continue their education: TECs offer instruction in Arabic, are staffed by Syrian volunteer teachers and use of a modified form of the Syrian curriculum. They are present in all camps in southeast Turkey, and MoNE has approved over 350 to operate in urban areas hosting large numbers of Syrian refugees.
- MoNE is now placing greater emphasis on the inclusion of Syrian children in Turkish schools and teaching Turkish language in TECs.
- In October 2016, for the fourth consecutive academic year, the Council of Ministers waived higher education tuition fees in State universities for Syrian students for the 2016-2017 academic year. In 2015, the Turkish government subsidized the tuition costs of approximately 1,600 Syrians in Turkish universities. Refugees of other nationalities may attend university, but are required to pay the same tuition fees as foreign students.

REFUGEE CHILDREN'S AND YOUTH'S ACCESS TO EDUCATION

- 40% of Syrian refugee children are out of school; enrolment is higher in camps than urban areas.
- The number of Syrian children enrolled in Turkish schools and TECs rose to almost 500,000 in 2016: Over 160,000 Syrian refugee children are enrolled in Turkish schools, with the rest in TECs.
- Non-Syrian refugees can enrol in Turkish schools in the cities and provinces in which they are registered.
- 2.2% of Syrian refugee youth are enrolled in Turkish universities vs. 20% enrolled in Syria before the war. Academic tuition costs have been waived by the Government of Turkey for Syrian students.
- The Presidency for Turks Abroad and Related Communities (YTB) has provided scholarships to over 2,300 Syrian refugees.
- All refugees may enrol in free Turkish language and skills-training courses offered by MoNE's Public Education Centres (Halk Egitim): These courses do not lead to formal vocational qualifications, but are sufficiently advanced to allow graduates to use their skills to support income generation and self-reliance.

UNHCR is grateful for the critical support provided by donors who have contributed to this operation:

UNHCR STRATEGY AND ACTIVITIES

- The education sector response is led by MoNE, with the support of UN agencies, including UNHCR: UNHCR’s education response is designed and delivered in close collaboration with the MoNE, YTB and UNICEF. UNICEF and UNHCR ensure the complementarity of their programmes through close coordination and through a division of roles and responsibilities, with UNHCR focusing on promoting refugees’ access to the national education system, providing Turkish language programmes and skills training, and promoting higher education access.
- The education strategy considers the needs of refugees of different ages, linking education opportunities to durable solutions and increased self-reliance.
- UNHCR consistently advocates for the inclusion of refugee children in the national education system to provide sustainable, predictable access to certified education, and welcomes MoNE’s efforts to include refugee children in Turkish schools. Children are prepared for enrolment in Turkish schools through informal education programmes delivered by UNHCR’s partners. 445,000 Turkish language textbooks were purchased for MoNE’s use in schools/TECs.
- Higher education access and meaningful skills training for refugee youth underpins UNHCR’s education strategy.
- UNHCR and UNICEF, as sector co-leads, provide technical support to education-focused NGOs and organizations engaged in refugee outreach to ensure the quality of counselling on the educational opportunities available to refugees, and procedures for accessing these services.
- Around 270 urban and 24 camp-based TECs were supported with teaching support materials developed jointly with the Ministry to enhance the quality of education offered, and 8,000 teachers were provided with stationery items required for educational administration and lesson preparation.
- Non-Syrian refugee children who can show proof of enrolment in Turkish schools receive twice-yearly cash grants.
- In partnership with YTB, 818 students were awarded DAFI scholarships in 2016/17, and 300 more will be awarded in 2017, making Turkey the largest DAFI programme in the world.
- 1,600 advanced Turkish language scholarships were offered to high school graduates to enable them to reach the language proficiency levels required for admission to Turkish universities. Students in urban areas also receive a cash stipend while attending courses to cover transportation and study-related costs.
- Language and skills training courses are offered through community centres, while vocational and skills training programmes are supported through the Livelihoods programme. In 2015, UNHCR provided MoNE with equipment for its Public Education Centres’ skills courses.
- UNHCR co-leads the southeast Turkey Education Working Group with UNICEF and plays a key role in the 3RP sector strategy. Monthly WG meetings are held in Gaziantep. UNHCR also coordinates a technical working group for higher education scholarship providers and will assist in the establishment of a higher education working group with the co-leadership of government counterparts.

CHALLENGES

- Despite positive national legislation and practices, enrolment in formal and higher education programmes remains low: lack of knowledge of educational options available to refugees, prioritization of spending on basic necessities over education, and dependence on children to contribute to household income are all barriers. Language proficiency is also an obstacle to enrolment in Turkish schools/universities, as is the fear of social exclusion and harassment. Demand for schooling remains high, however supply of places in TECs and national schools does not match demand in many provinces, with many operating close to capacity.
- Skills-building and language courses are only attended by a fraction of the refugee youth: lack of awareness of available services remains a barrier to participating and there is insufficient civil society capacity to meet demand. Language proficiency also limits participation in MoNE’s skills-building courses.

Contacts:

Jennifer Roberts, Senior Education Officer, roberts@unhcr.org

Lauren Panetta Chammas, Reporting Officer, panetta@unhcr.org

Links:

Regional Portal - Syria Regional Refugee Response | Regional Portal - Mediterranean | UNHCR Turkey website | Facebook