

In February 2017, 3RP partners continued to support the scaling up of access opportunities for refugee and host-community children and youth, with some of the highlights noted below.

In Turkey, partners have launched the first phase of a large-scale education outreach campaign in six provinces to monitor and evaluate the coverage of educational opportunities available to refugee children. In Jordan, 196 double-shifted schools are operational and accommodate the increased number of refugee children requiring education. As part of the ongoing Back-to-Learning campaign, registration for formal education has been extended to mid-March, which will allow more students to enrol throughout the year. In Iraq, partners have provided extra-curricular activities for out-of-school Syrian refugees and host community children and are coordinating with the Department of Education to ensure that these children can be accepted in public schools in September 2017. In Egypt, support for children to access education services from pre-primary education was increased to cover the rising costs of living in the country. Retention support and homework support programmes have been provided in Lebanon to ensure children receive additional support on skills relevant to learning to learn. In Turkey, more than 20,000 Syrian volunteer teachers have received certified training on improved pedagogy, while in Iraq training was provided on educational play materials and the role of School Management Committees to 360 teachers.
