

As at the end of April, 899,263 Syrian girls and boys across the region continued to have access to formal education in schools in camp and host communities. At the same time, more than 33,000 Syrian boys and girls were enrolled in informal or non-accredited education. Since the start of 2017 some 14,501 teachers and education personnel received incentives, while more than 1.8 million children received school supplies.

In Jordan the “Learning for All” campaign was concluded in April, after which a post-campaign assessment was conducted to identify lessons learnt and best practices. After several months of planning and contracting, school rehabilitation works are under way in 123 public schools across Lebanon. The intervention entails the improvement of physical learning environments and classrooms in most-in-need Lebanese public schools. In Turkey, since January 2017, more than 37,000 teachers in all 81 provinces have been successfully trained on inclusive education to improve their pedagogical skills and more effectively respond to the needs of a growing number of Syrian children enrolled in Turkish public schools. A total of 326 children enrolled in non-formal education (NFE) programmes in Erbil, Iraq, and 409 out-of-school children participated in NFE activities run through a mobile school.
