The participation of affected populations at different levels was emphasized and that GAM was designed to ensure this and the affected populations to be implicated in and influencing humanitarian processes.

GAM can be used in both design and monitoring processes and is a reflective tool, which can be used to ensure all activities safeguard all the needs by gender and age groups.

The Cash Capacity Advisor highlighted the transition from traditional in-kind assistance to cash assistance in humanitarian responses and the importance of cash assistance based on needs assessments considering gender and age.
