Gaps Identified

There are several obstacles stifling provision of access to justice. They include:

- Limited facilities for holding juvenile offenders at Police posts.
- Inadequate facilitation of Court personnel which affects discharge of court duties and participation in Mobile Courts.
- Limited knowledge of Ugandan laws coupled with limited knowledge of Court procedures.
- Inadequate facilitation of Police (fuel, vehicles and accommodation) continues to affect presence of Police in settlements. International standards require that one Police Officer is deployed per 500 individuals, current numbers of Police Officers deployed in all settlement totals to 339 which is below the required standard.
- Language barrier at the Police stations and courts remains a challenge for witnesses, this is coupled with difficulty in accessing interpreters for court which often results in miscarriage of justice.
- Long period of remand for refugee inmates due to failure to access sureties on grounds that refugees lack fixed places of abode.
- Some prisons have inadequate facilities (accommodation, permanent latrines, fences) leading to congestion and poor welfare of detainees.
- Delay using we're going to have to combine that with concrete model much longer but they are able to get this this week will work resume yeah makes sense person waiting for the improvement why has the bigger collection to see it in the framework because I might also limit the management perhaps well given that we have election is already happened I don't understand it good question play under my
- Poor and prolonged investigation of cases due to limited capacity, lack of investigative skills, poor turn up of witnesses leading to frequent adjournments and case dismissal for want of prosecution.
- Delays in expediting cases (especially capital offences) due to intermittent court sessions, lack of legal representation and limited number of Judicial Officers to handle cases leading to increased case backlog.
