Objective

General Objective

- Firstly, to understand the access to and the conditions of Ukrainian online education for school-aged refugee children in Moldova, incentives of online education, and the impact of remote learning on children's socio-emotional well-being.
- Secondly, to explore the experiences and conditions of Ukrainian refugee children enrolled in Moldovan schools, and of their caregivers, regarding the enrolment procedure, continuous learning and in-school social cohesion, socio-emotional well-being.

Specific Objectives

- To understand the factors influencing the choice of education modality by caregivers
- To explore the perception of barriers and facilitators to schooling in Moldova for Ukrainian refugee children
- To understand the learning conditions for Ukrainian students taking online classes as well as teachers in Ukraine delivering teaching
- To obtain a general sense of the social and emotional well-being of students following Ukrainian and Moldovan schooling
- To understand the ability of Moldovan teachers to cope with the influx of refugee students
- To assess the level of social cohesion regarding children in both learning modalities
- To provide perspectives on what future education policies and measures can assist in Ukrainian refugee's access to education in Moldova
