The handbook is available in English and Arabic in soft copy (it can be downloaded from the web) and in hard copy (distributed during the SGBV SWG meeting). Future plans: UNFPA Syria Hub will develop a training based on the handbook and conduct a journalists training, currently expected to take place in June. SGBV SWG participants expressed interest in the training and in cooperating at this regard. Additionally, UNFPA and participating SGBV SWG members expressed willingness to work within organizations to sensitize staff in regards to how to work with journalists.	SGBV SWG Members to be informed about the training, once participants will be sought.
Women and Girls Safe Spaces - a guidance note based on lessons learned from the Syrian crisis (Jennifer Miquel, UNFPA Syria Hub)	UNFPA Syria Hub launched a publication on safe spaces in humanitarian setting, The publication was developed through lessons learned from the Syria crisis and represents a guidance for the development and operation of safe spaces, in addition to guidance relating to monitoring and evaluation. In discussions after the presentation some members suggested that organizations consider	Soft version of the Safe Space publication to be shared	SGBV SWG Coordinators

Za'atari and Azraq, field update	Za'atari: SGBV and Child Protection groups held a joint meeting. During the joint meeting the two SWGs at camp level approved merging into one SWG. Thursday 26 March 2015 there will be elections at the Child Protection working group, where the chair of the Child Protection component will be elected, which IFH-NHF has already been nominated as co-chair for the SGBV component. A joint TOR will be developed by the two new co-chairs, for the combined SWG at camp level. Azraq: Joint activities are being planned by organizations. For example, CARE and IRC are planning celebrations for Mother's Day in collaboration with women in the community.
