

Key figures

86,152

estimated Arrivals from South Sudan since April 2025

(Mixed population including refugees, asylum seekers, returnees, etc.)

45,084

estimated newly arrived South Sudanese

41,068

estimated Sudanese Returnees

Who is working

CCCM

ADRA, COR, Blue Mountain Development

Food

SRCS, WFP, WRI

Health and nutrition

Al Manar, CAFA, MOH, MSF, MTI, PAN, SRCS, WVI

Protection

UNICEF, WVI

WASH

CVO, IAS/LM, MSF, UNICEF, WES

NFI

CAFA, IAS/LM

NFI/Shelter

Education

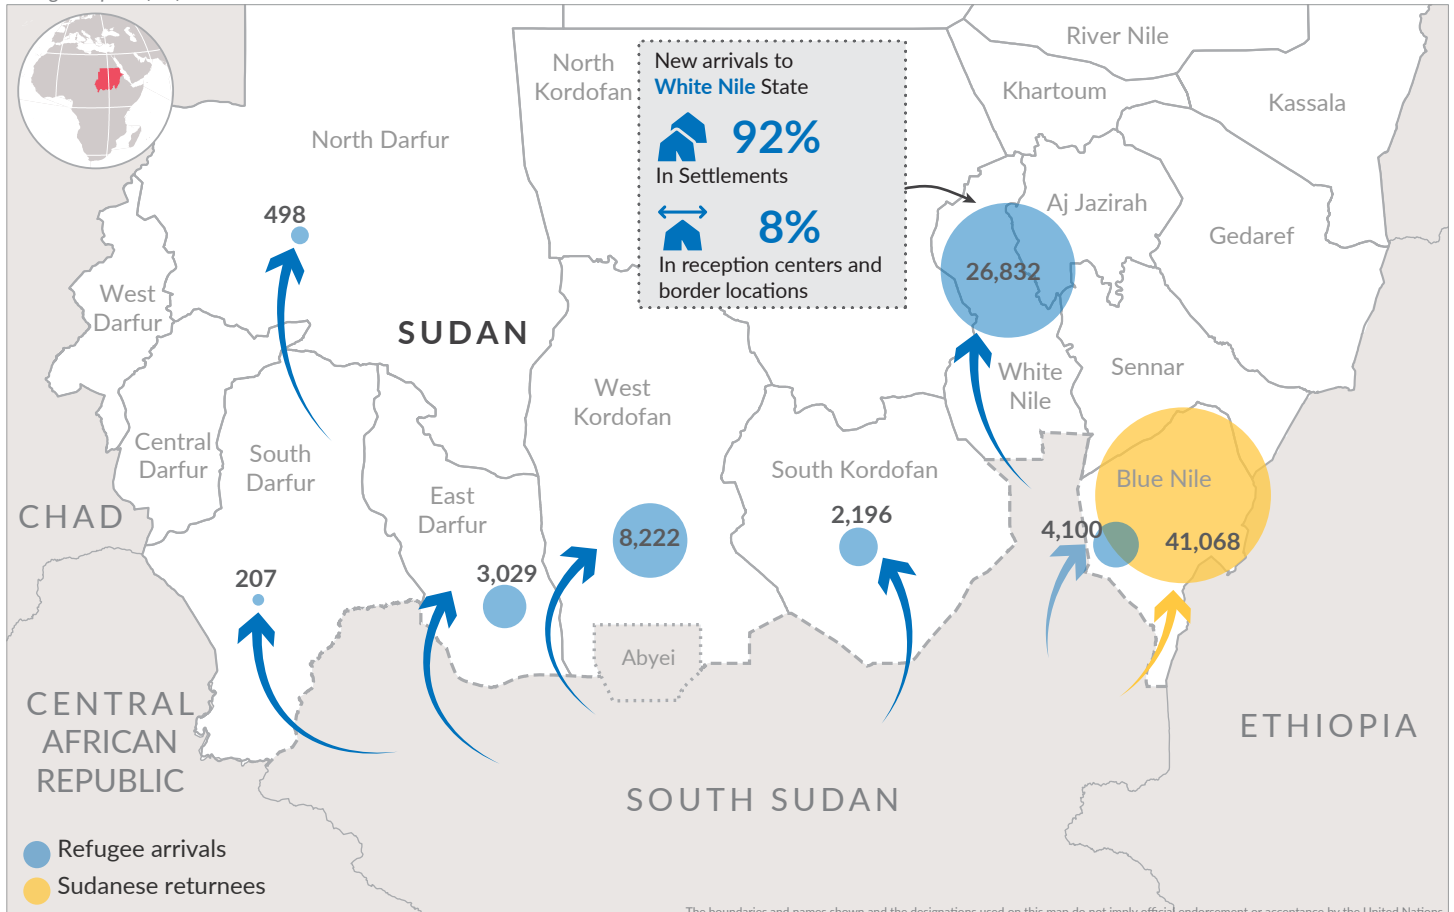

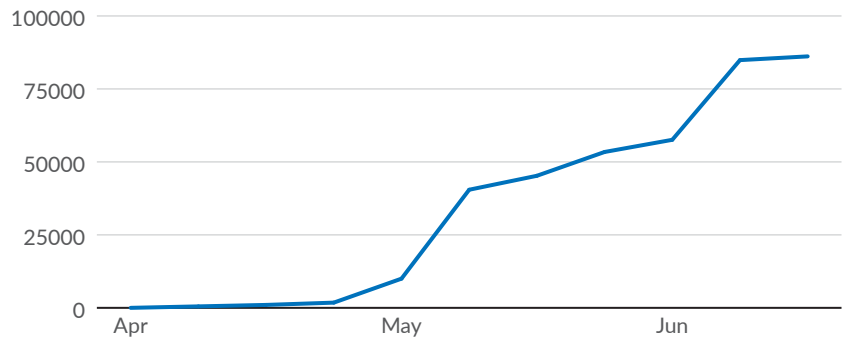

UNICEF

Context

Since late February, political instability and rising hostilities between armed groups in South Sudan have led to fresh clashes, particularly in Upper Nile state. This has caused a large influx of people to flee South Sudan and move to Sudan. Over 86,000 people have entered Sudan during this period. This includes an estimated 45,000 South Sudanese, most of whom are in White Nile state. This state already hosts 412,000 South Sudanese refugees as well as 847,000 internally displaced people. Daily arrivals continue, placing immense pressure on already overstretched services in refugee camps. UNHCR is planning to conduct Household Surveys targeting the returnees as part of border monitoring and is exploring a potential partnership with the Sudanese Red Crescent Society (SRCS) and IOM to strengthen border monitoring efforts in the White Nile State.

Adding to this complexity is the arrival of more than 41,000 Sudanese returnees to Blue Nile State. Having previously fled the conflict in Sudan, these people are now fleeing the situation in South Sudan. Returnees have cited insecurity and prolonged lack of food assistance and essential services in South Sudanese camps as key reasons for their return. This is an indication of potential on-going arrivals from South Sudan impacting states bordering South Sudan.

Total new arrivals (cumulative since Apr. 2025)

The boundaries and names shown and the designations used on this map do not imply official endorsement or acceptance by the United Nations.