Highlights

• Official figures continued to remain the same as announced on September 18, 2012 (83,260) however local authorities (Ministry of Foreign Affairs) informed that according to information from the Disaster and Emergency Management Presidency (AFAD) the number of Syrians accommodated in the camps as well as those under medical treatment in various hospitals in Turkey reached about 83,480 persons.

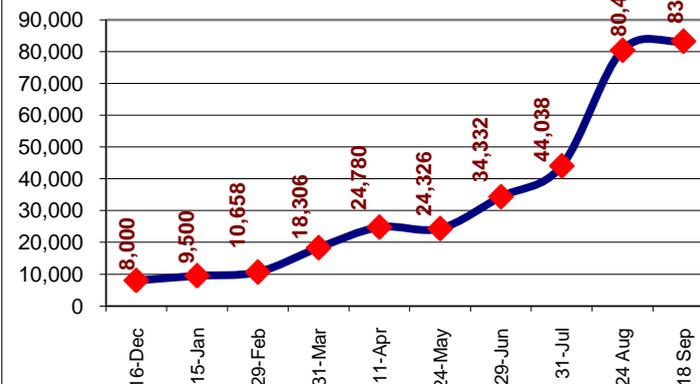

• Due to the recent clashes across the border on Syrian side, reportedly the opponent group, Free Syrian Army took the control of the border gate of Tel-Abyad on the Syrian side across Akçakale. According to the local authorities there are some 500 Syrians crossed to Turkish side and all have been registered in Akçakale camp but some more than 400 of them have relatives in Akçakale town so upon their request, they were hosted by the relatives while some 100 have remained in Akçakale camp.

• According to the Regional Representative of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, despite the admission of those across the borders of Kilis and Hatay in groups, the numbers across the border of Kilis increased to approximately 8,000 people and some 4,000 are also across the border of Hatay.
