NEEDS

Syrians often arrive to countries of asylum with few personal possessions and savings are soon depleted. For refugees living in camps, the most basic domestic items are needed to adapt to camp life, including jerry cans to transport water and for washing, kitchen sets and stoves for food preparation as well as blankets for warmth and tent insulation. For Syrians not residing in camps, accommodation is often found with host families, in sparsely furnished apartments or other ad-hoc housing solutions, with little funds to purchase needed domestic items. Children, especially those of school-age, are support in their enrollment and school retention through clothing support. RRP5 partners coordinate the purchase, logistics and distribution plans of core relief items in sector working groups. In some hosting countries, the provision of cash assistance is intended to support the purchase of basic domestic items.

KEY SEPTEMBER DEVELOPMENTS

In Lebanon, UNHCR allocated new-arrival NFI kits to the five regions to cover gaps as identified by the NFI working group. Partners and donors coordinated towards full coverage of the winterization needs for 90,000 households. High thermal blankets and heating stoves are under procurement for vulnerable registered households. Winterization cash assistance is planned to be implemented through ATM cards. The Government of Turkey has the lead role in determining NFIs required for the refugees in camps. The delivery of additional cooking facilities was completed during September. Procurement process of high-thermal blankets for winterization assistance is underway. Wheelchairs for persons with disabilities procured to be delivered within October. Contingency items (kitchen sets, medium blankets, jerry cans, sleeping mats, rubhalls) are also to be distributed to Syrians during October. Replacement of worn out tents in camps has been completed.

In Jordan, a common winterisation approach in coordination with other sectors is agreed. Over 15,620 families (7,382 only in September) received urgent Cash Assistance (one-time) to address urgent vulnerability. An additional 57,450 families (about 23,000 in September) received conditional or unconditional cash assistance, as a cash complement towards basic households needs.

In Iraq, core relief items were distributed to the majority of arrivals into the camps in the northern governorates while planning for winterization support for non-camp and camp refugees continues.

In Egypt, cash assistance waiting period reached its lowest level since the assistance was first introduced. Fast tracking mechanisms for the most vulnerable cases were established for the purpose.
