NEEDS

Syrians often arrive to countries of asylum with few personal possessions and savings are soon depleted. For refugees living in camps, the most basic domestic items are needed to adapt to camp life, including jerry cans to transport water and for washing, kitchen sets and stoves for food preparation as well as blankets for warmth and tent insulation. For Syrians not residing in camps, accommodation is often found with host families, in sparsely furnished apartments or other ad-hoc housing solutions, with little funds to purchase needed domestic items. Children, especially those of school-age, are supported in their enrollment and school retention through clothing support. RRP5 partners coordinate the purchase, logistics and distribution plans of core relief items in sector working groups. In some host countries, the provision of cash assistance is intended to support the purchase of basic domestic items.

KEY OCTOBER DEVELOPMENTS

Winterization activities are underway in all countries to assist refugees and host communities cope with cold and wet conditions.

In Lebanon, Partners and donors coordinated towards full coverage of the winterization needs for 90,000 households. High thermal blankets and heating stoves are under procurement for vulnerable registered households. Winterization cash assistance for fuel and other purposes is being prepared through ATM cards.

The Government of Turkey has the lead role in determining NFIs required for the refugees in camps. High-thermal blankets, electric heaters and children's clothing are being purchased. Wheelchairs for persons with disabilities have been delivered to the camps and contingency items (kitchen sets, medium blankets, jerry cans, sleeping mats, rubhalls) have been distributed.

In Jordan, cash assistance as a complement towards basic households needs continues. Over 80% of winterization items were in stock at the end of October including 220,000 blankets, 44,000 plastic tarpaulins and 600,000 pieces of clothing.

In Iraq, 100,000 blankets, 100,000 quilts and 76,000 plastic tarpaulins are being purchased for distribution in camps and outside camps at the start of the cold season. In addition, concrete slabs are being constructed for basic insulation of tents and interior insulation items like double tent lining, floor insulation and insulated sleeping mats will be provided.

In Egypt, 2,447 vulnerable families received cash assistance and UNHCR provided training to partners implementing cash assistance programmes on methodologies of vulnerability assessment. Several meetings have been conducted by the Syrian Businessmen Association to discuss ways forward to improve Syrian refugees' self-reliance and the contribution of Syrian investors in achieving this objective.
