CRISIS DECLARED OVER DIMINISHING PASTURE

The Ministry of Production, Irrigation and Agriculture on 12 June declared a crisis over diminishing pasture in eight regions of the central Sahel belt and in northern Chad. Recurrent rainfall deficits in recent years have accelerated desertification and reduction of pastureland and water, particularly in the Sahel belt. The situation has significantly worsened since February, leading to an early pastoral lean season and livestock deaths. Herders begun migrating earlier than usual. This has sparked tensions over access to water and grazing land and increased conflicts between the herders themselves and with farmers. The Food Security cluster is in contact with the ministry to jointly develop a plan to tackle the crisis.

LANDSLIDES CLAIM 17 LIVES, HUNDREDS LEFT HOMELESS

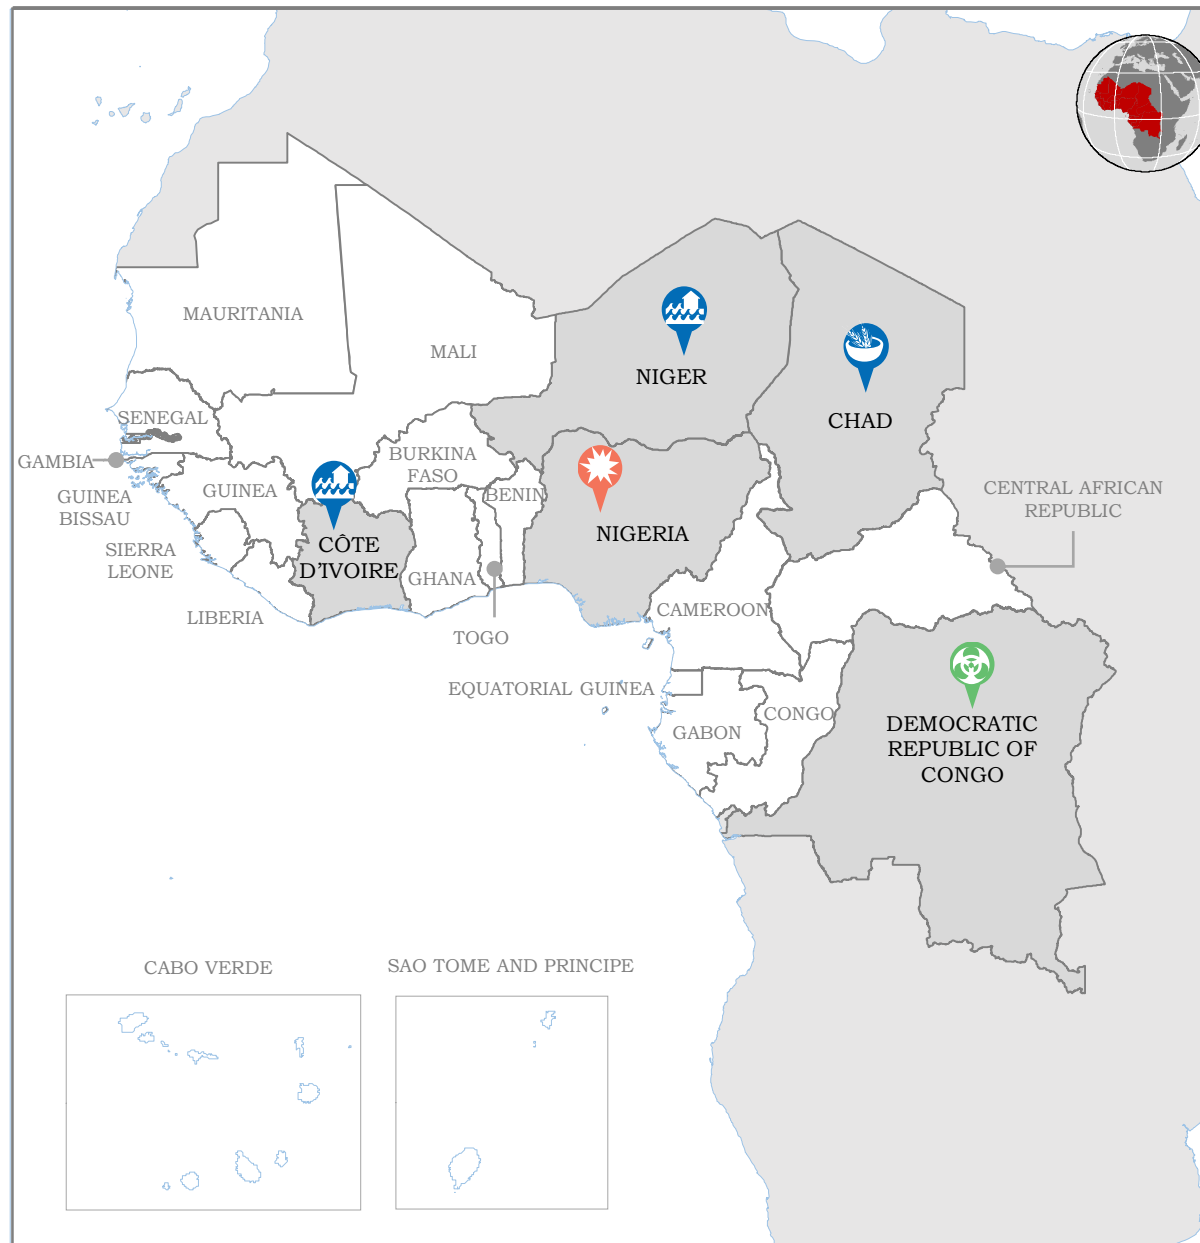

Landslides triggered by heavy rains in recent weeks have killed 17 people and rendered some 250 families homeless in the commercial capital Abidjan. Flooding in the city is a usual occurrence during the rainy season. Storm drains are rarely cleared in time and despite the dismantling of illegal settlements, construction continues in flood-prone areas. The Ministry of Women, Child Protection and Solidarity is working on a plan to improve disaster response. The plan, which is to be finalised this week, includes compensation of victims as well as response to hazards such as drought and bush fires.
