

BURUNDI SITUATION

2017 Regional Refugee Response Plan: Overview

OVERVIEW

The Burundi Regional Refugee Response Plan (RRRP) 2017 articulates the regional protection and humanitarian needs of an anticipated 534,000 Burundian refugees by 31 December 2017 and outlines the inter-agency response strategy and financial requirements of 30 agencies responding across four major countries of asylum: the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Rwanda, Tanzania and Uganda.

Nearly 100,000 Burundi refugees fled to the Democratic Republic of Congo, Rwanda, Tanzania and Uganda in 2016 alone, and the flight trend continues. Despite massive regional needs, the 2016 RRRP was only 50% funded. The shortfall in resources, combined with limited available camp space, is mounting pressure on reception capacities of hosting states. As the crisis moves into its third year, the refugee response will continue to provide emergency assistance to the new arrivals and provide care and maintenance for those already in camps, while also seeking avenues to improve livelihood opportunities for refugees and host communities.

COORDINATION

As the outflow of Burundian refugees continues, local, national and international coordination structures will be further strengthened. Support to national governments is essential to ensure that large influxes can be managed and that refugees are able to live in dignity and have access to basic services.

Under the Refugee Coordination Model (RCM), UNHCR leads and coordinates the response to the Burundi refugee emergency in each affected country in close collaboration with governments. Technical meetings are organized per sector at the local level and also in the respective capitals.

Finally, work has started globally towards the adoption in 2018 of a Global Compact on refugees, based on the Comprehensive Refugee Response Framework (CRRF). UNHCR is currently working on a CRRF for Tanzania. The CRRF will specify key elements for a comprehensive response to any large movement of refugees. These include rapid and well-supported reception and admissions; support for immediate and ongoing needs (e.g. protection, health, education); assistance for local and national institutions and communities receiving refugees; and expanded opportunities for solutions.
